<sup>1</sup> Audie Murphy was born June 20, 1925 and was seventeen when he enlisted. Many sources incorrectly state he was born June 20, 1924. The error is based on confusion created by a falsified birth certificate Audie Murphy filed at the Hunt County, Texas Courthouse, with the help of his older sister, Corrine, so he could join the military before he was legally of age. Audie later admitted, on more than one occasion, that he lied about his age. A list of other references, which include first hand interviews where Audie admits falsifying his birthday, include the following ...

- Audie's 1970 California Driver's license
- Photoplay, January 1951, page 80.
- Modern Screen, July 1951, page 70.
- Modern Screen, July 1955, page 85.
- Movie Stars Parade, January 1958, page 68.
- "The War Hero" by Thomas B. Morgan, Esquire magazine, Vol. 100, No. 6, December 1983 (pages 597-604).
- "Helmets in the Dust" by David McClure, circa 1956, based on about 80 pages of writings by Audie Murphy and conversations held between McClure and Murphy states that Audie Murphy joined the Army on his seventeenth birthday, having falsified his age to be eligible for enlistment.
